New materials – the ultimate in tactility

The new collection features an elevated material palette. Wood – a signature element of Bentley Home is now available in more open pore, matte finishes providing a new, sensory depth. A rare, wood veneer in a deep, amaranth hue will debut in rich, Amaranth Frisé that intensifies over time and a fresh, Shadowgrain finish adding depth and character. Stone features prominently with a new selection including Verde Belvedere marble in Deep Green and brushed Ivory Onyx combined with a new offering - cashmere upholstery – a juxtaposition of texture and tactility in the finest materials available.

A broad new interior furniture range

Four new, full customisable furniture pieces will be launched, with finishes available in a range of exquisite materials - leather, wood veneer, precious stones and cashmere.

- Fenton Table - Francesco Forcellini, a long-standing Bentley Home design collaborator has created a new, aerodynamic dining table with a double layered top. Fully customisable in a round or rectangular top – the largest being 3.60 metres - a direct response to clients' demands for ever grander entertaining areas and corporate offices.
- Ashford Modular Sofa – Designed by Carlo Colombo, provides an elegant suspended solid wooden base with upholstered leather cushions, with back cushions embroidered with the iconic Bentley diamond pattern and an integrated wood veneer coffee table - also available as a chaise longue.
- Verve Coffee Tables – A floating curved glass top balances on a metal base featuring an intricate laser engraving of the Bentley diamond. The table seems to balance in the air – a piece of sculpture for the home and available in a range of sizes.
